

Your INL Update — Week of May 17, 2010

This is Nicole Stricker with your INL Update.

Idaho National Laboratory's contribution to small business success has earned national recognition. The Department of Energy recently rewarded the lab's commitment to mentoring Portage, an Idaho small business. INL believes mentoring plays a fundamental role in working with local businesses.

The local Big Brothers Big Sisters program got some support from INL employees last week. They spent some time on the green at the organization's annual golf tournament to raise money that supports the mentoring program for local kids.

Roughly one thousand fifth- and sixth-graders from school districts 91 and 93 learned about Idaho water issues at the recent Water Festival at the Tautphaus Park hockey shelter. One of the hands-on activities was a water trivia game led by an INL environmental services employee. The students also toured the Gem State Power Plant.

This was your INL Update. You'll find more information at INL.gov, including community announcements and the latest INL news.